

Little Louis Bellow

Little Louis Bellow was a really young fellow who wore a cape that was red, blue and yellow.

Today at lunch, he wanted to munch.
In fact, he wanted to munch and crunch a bunch!
He wanted to munch on this, he wanted to munch on that,
he was so busy eating that he had no time to chat.

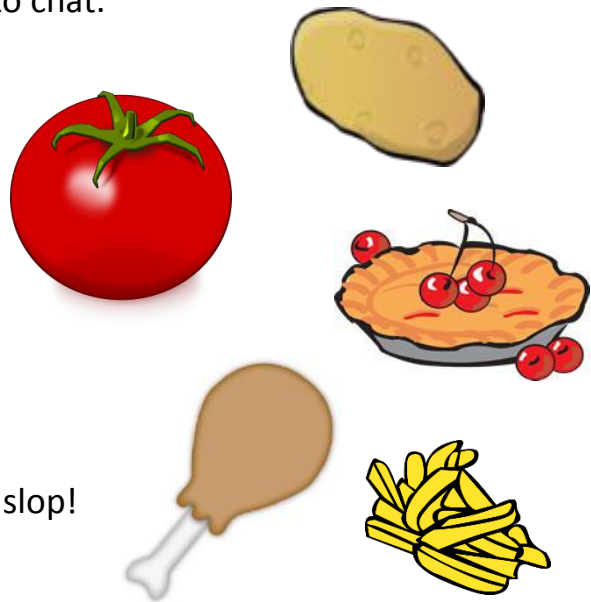

He ate a stick of pepperoni
and two dishes of macaroni.
He devoured a bag of potatoes
along with ten ripe tomatoes.
He gobbled down cherry pies
and honey glazed French fries.
He wolfed down scrambled eggs
along with roasted chicken legs.
He just kept on eating, it was non-stop,
he ate just about anything, even icky, slimy slop!

As he ate and ate, he kept gaining weight
At a very very rapid rate.

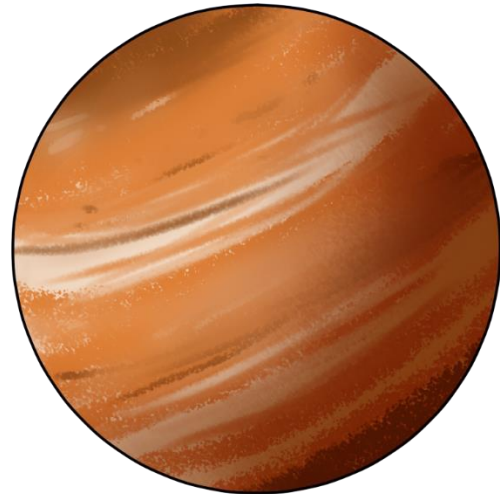

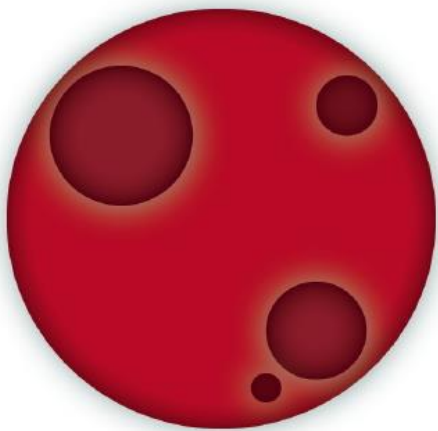

His belly started to grow
more than you can ever know.
Oh, poor Little Louis Bellow!

He got so big and round and puffy.
His body turned into a balloon
as big as the moon.
The balloon started to float in the air
and people stopped to stare.

My oh my,
soon the balloon was up high in the sky!
He just kept floating away,
a little more each day.

People say that on a clear night,
when the stars are really bright,
you can still see Little Louis Bellow
with his cape that was red, blue and yellow floating by the planets and stars,
passing Jupiter and Mars.
